The amendment answered the purpose of protests made by Southern senators, and, in addition to that, established the principle that any matter in the nature of a treaty with a foreign government must be consummated by the President, "with the consent of the Senate." In this form the committee reported the treatles to the Senate. The treatles were considered yesterday, but no action taken beyond arriving at an agreement that they would again be taken up to-day.

President Criticised.

President Criticised.

The first session of the Senate to-day was confined almost entirely to a defense, by half a dozen senators, of the Senate's right to amend treatles. The President was criticised sharply because of his letter declaring it to be a step backward to ratify the treatles in the form proposed by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

Senator Morgan, with the President's letter as the text of his remarks, made a sharp criticism of executive interference with the Senate in performing its part in the making of treaties. He spoke of the letter as another evidence of the President's tendency toward the usuppation of, the senatorial prerogative, and said that the President had no more right to interfere with the Senate would have had to interfere with him while the treaty was in process of preparation.

Senator Spooner took issue with the President on the substitution of the word "treaty" for "agreement," contenting that the change was not an indication of any backward step, but that even of any backward step, but that even this change, the consummation of treatics would mark an important forward.

Determined to Stand Firm.

The discussion in the Senate showed a determination to stand firm in regard to the prerogatives of the Senate, and to insist that the word "treaty" should be substituted for "agreement" in all of the treatics, which is the cruckal point in the contention between the President and the Senate.

In the contention between the President and the Senate.

The discussion, which was characterized by expressions of the highest regard for the President, was along the line that the Senate could not, if it would, surrepider its part of the treaty-making power. Among the scaaters who took this position in addition to Mr. Spooner, were Messrs. Foraker and Lodge.

The latter was especially firm in supporting the committee amendment, and insisted that with all due regard to the President, it was for the Senate to determine its rights and to support its preregatives. Senator Foraker was no less emphatic in his declaration to the same effect.

"We already have sufficient evidence on which to hold Hoch, for the grand jury," was the positive statement by Corconer Hoffman to-day. The coroner intimated that he attached most importance to a final report on the analysis of the internal organs of Marie Welcker-Hoch. The analysis thus far has established the fact that aresule was found in the victim's stomach, but whether this was the direct cause of death cannot be established until the critice examination of other organs has been completed. A final report will be made a week from Monday.

Despite Denials.

(Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 11.—M., Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador to Great Britain, had a long conference to-day with King Edward at Buckingham Falace. It was said both at the Russian embassy and the foreign office after the conference, that It had nothing whatever to do with the question of peace negotiations between Russia and Japan. Nevertieless, the general impression is that M. Benckendorff presente to His Majesty a communication from the Czar, which indicated that Russia would be glad to have the good offices of Great Britain in opening negotiations with Japan, looking to an ending of the war.

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of the Times-Dispatch May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all dis-cases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its district. body is attacted, and now very to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get batter they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

I was out of health and run down generally; had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the casts of my trouble, but somehow feit that they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Hoot. There is such a pleasant taste to Swamp-Hoot, and it goes right to the spot and drives disease out of the system. It has cured me, making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recomend it to all sufferers.

COUNTESS REFUSES

TO SURRENDER CHILD

(By Associated Press.)

FLORENCE, Feb. II.—The case of the Countess Montignose is assuming a tragle character, owing to the tenacity with which she refuses to give up her child, the Princess Anna. Dr. Koerner, the comissary of King Prederick Augustus, of Saxony, when he read his sovereign's decree for the Countess Montignose to turn over the Princess to Dr. Koerner, threat cond, when she refused to accede, to employ Saxon delectives to watch her. The Countess Montignose, holding her child in her arms, exclaimed; "You will have to tear her from me!" To this Dr. Koerner er replied; "Let us stop this farce." He then left for Rome to ask assistance from the German embassy.

The lawyers of Countess Montignose have decided to insist that all exchanges of views regarding the case shall be brought through diplomatic channels, claiming that they have valid reasons to refuse to allow the Countess to deliver up the child. They also have asked protection from the authorities in case an attempt is made on the person or domicile of the Countess.

This spectacular feature will be the curtain raiser to a grim struggle of long or short duration between Prime Minister Balfour's administration and the Liberal opposition. Closest observers are unable to gauge the staying powers of the government. Rumbrs of a dissolution of the government are just as rife and just as positive as were the statements unade a year ago, when the best prognosticators gave Mr. Balfour only strength sufficient to read the budget. Now it is confidently stated that dissolution will come quickly, even within the limit of debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, which will hast about two weeks. On the other hand, Mr. Balfour and many of the most prominent members of the Unionist party assert in positive terms that they can only be defeated by the failure of the Unionist members to do their duty, and that the government will not resign unless it is defeated on an important division.
